W. L. MARCY, in reply, that delays did occur in the movement upon Vera Ciuz which were most vexatious, but which were not occasioned by any neglect or omission on my part, or on that of any other officer of the department, as a detail of the facts will show. The memorandum from the War Department for the Quartermaster General, alluded to by General Scott, fixed the number of transport ships for his expedition at forty-one, viz: twelve for the volunteers, ordnance, and supplies, from the Atlantic; five for surf-boats or lighters; ten to go out in ballast for troops on the Gulf of Mexico; and fourteen to be supplied by the officers of the quartermaster's department at New Orleans and on the Gulf That number, I take it for granted, was determined upon by Gen'l Scott himself, or by the War Department, with his assent; as I have not understood that he at any time objected to the number as insufficient. He complains that the ten in ballast for troops were not sent, and that the embarcation was delayed thereby, "in whole or in

Colonel Stanton informs me that the order to charter those ten vessels was countermanded in consequence of a letter from me, dated at Brazos Santiago the 27th day of December, which was read by General Scott before it was sealed, and to which he added a postscript .-The General no doubt relied upon those vessels. I expected them; for I believed they would be chartered and on the way before my letter could be received; but so boisterious was the season, that I thought it unsafe to trust to their arrival, and made my arrangements as if they had actually failed; which fact I reported to General Scott, as well as I now remember, either through Capt. Wayne or the late Capt, Hetzel.

It will be seen by reference to the memorandum referred to, that twenty-seven vessels were to be sent from the Atlantic with troops, supplies, and in ballast. Not one was sent in ballast; but there were actually fifty-three ships, barques, brigs, and schooners, sent with troops and supplies. It was expected that I should furnish fourteen ships. A Question

FOR THE PUBLIC TO DECIDE. MAN it be expected that Merchants and Druggists, who lend themselves to palm off upon the public their base imitations and counterfeit medicines, in preference to the genuine, merely because they can make more per cent on them. would deal honestly in selling other articles? We think not. Persons that deal out counterfeit medicines, and thus encourage counterfeiters, even at the expense of the health and life of their customers and neighbors, are they honest-or honorable
